Office: Nos. 25 and 27 Fourteenth Street THURSDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY S.

Thansportation by rail and river is so impeded by snow and ice that provisions have materially advanced at Washington

Tuz Wheeling correspondent of the Philippi Plaindealer expresses the opinion that a fifty cent dog tax, per capita, will be passed by the present Legislature. Perhaps fifty cents is enough to start

Mr. J. M. BENNETT, of Weston, is stopping at the McLure House, Mr. Bennett is one of the gentlemen in Lewis county who have gone into the sheep business pretty extensively, having now 1000 head on his farms. He finds it more profitable than cattle raising.

Ws are indepted to Hon. Henry G Davis for a valuable pamphlet just issued from the census office, at Washington, containing tabular statements exhibiting the total population in each State and ter ritory, and the apportionment of members of Congress (from a House composed of 293 members up to 325) to each State West Virginia will get four members under any one of these apportionments.

THE Clarksburg & Weston Railroad makes a hundred dollars per day, Would not a road from Grafton to Philippi do as nuch? We know it would,—Barbour Jef-fersonius.

It certainly ought to prove a paying investment, both directly and indirectly and we are glad to see a serious movement in the direction indicated. Barbour county needs a railroad to open up travel and trade with the outside world. If she will only show, in connection with Taylor county, the proper public spirit in this matter, she can easily secure the proposed

HERE'S a point suggested by the New York Journal of Commerce for owners of houses now decorated with telephone wires to consider:

The owners of houses in the city who The owners of houses in the city who allow private or other telegraph wires to be fastened to their chimneys and walls should advise themselves as to the rights over their real estate which continuous use may give to the owners of the wires. There is of course a period of time after the lapse of which, under certain circumstances, the statute of limitations will deprive the real estate owner of any remedy against an occupant of his property. * prive the real estate owner of any remedy against an occupant of his property. * * It is a serious question whether the real estate owner is not responsible to any person injured by the falling of posts which he or his tenant has erected on housetops, which prove insufficient to hold weights attached to them. It is time that owners of houses looked into this matter.

THEY are discussing the Cremation question at the country school house lyceums in Washington county, Pa. We observe that the prejudice against Dr. Le Moyne's furnace is gradually dissipating in that county. The time will probably come within this generation when the Doctor will again be vindicated as a pioneer of advanced thought, as he was in the early advocacy of anti-slavery ideas. All over the civilized world the subject of cremation is receiving an increased amount of favorable attention. The general repulsiveness of the idea of burning dead bodies is giving way to well established utilitarian ideas on the subject of health and economy. Death has been made so expensive in such a variety of ways to the masses, and the atmospheric and water taint communicated by vast cemeteries in close proximity to cities is so well established, that the great law of necessity is operating steadily in favor of cremation.

One of the best farmers in Ohio county informs us that he has found a good deal of clear profit in raising plenty of chickens and looking well after their comfort in the winter. Butter and eggs are two items of profit that he lays much stress on. Here is an item in regard to the management of fowls that is worthy of attention on the part of farmers. It is in regard to the use of charcoal and lime.

"These two articles play a very import-ant part in the management of fowls, whether bred in a fancier's yard or on a farm. Charcoal should be liberally fed, whether bred in a fancier's yard or on a farm. Charcoal should be liberally fed, for no one thing is more conductive to health than is this. It should be broken in small lumps and put where the fowls can get at it, and they will eat it with great relish. We have seen it fed to pigs with the very best results, and those which were treated to it were never troubled with disease or sickness, while neighboring ones were. This helps to prove its value, not only for swine, but for lowls. Where the birds are kept in confinement it is a very good plan to keep a small trough in a sheltered place, full of small bits of charcoal, and the fowls: will soon learn to help themselves. The value of lime in the form of whitewash is well known, and those who use it liberally are the once who keep their flocks healthy and cleanly. To render whitewash more effective in dislodging, driving away or destroying lice and other parasitic nuisances, the addition of a little carbolic is invaluable, for scarcely anything else seems to be so distasteful to the vermin. Air slacked lime should be occasionally scattered over the floor of the chicken house, to remove unpleasant and unhealthy ofors, while a little git it should be occasionally to the control of the seem of the order. scattered over the hoor of the chicken house, to remove unpleasant and unhealthy odors, while a little of it should be scattered around the yards and runs, for material for egg-shells. Oyster-shell lime is the best for this purpose.

The Funeral of Rabbi Mayer Formerly of Wheeling. Baltimore American, Jacuary 81st. Rabbi Abram L. Mayer, the father of Mr. Adolph Mayer, No. 35 Orleans street, who died on Friday last of lung disease, at his son's residence, was buried yesterday in a simple but most impressive manner. The deceased was an advanced Reformed Hebrew, but shortly before his death he requested that his funeral service be conducted according to the simple manner of the orthodox sect. Accordingly, at 10 A. M. the ceremonies took place, and were noticeably deroid of any ostenta-tion and formality. The attendance was so large that all could not gain an entrance to the residence, and many were compelled to stand on the pavement. were compelled to stand on the payement. The parlor was thronged with prominent Hebrews, as well as those of the poorer classes, to whom the deceased was a most generous benelactor, and on all sides there were manifold evidences of the sestem in which he was held. The body of the rabbi, as required by the orthodox ritual, reposed in a white-pine coffin, resting on two wooden chairs. The venerable gray beard and a portion of the face only were visible through the beavy folds of the coarse white shrough and presented an appearance of impressive grandeur, rendered all the more impressive by the simple surroundings. At the appointed hour those gathered around the body (all of whom were men) alowly parted, and the family, making their way to the coffin, took a farewell look at the remains. Then a friend advanced, and sanid a solemn stillness placed over each eye and upon the lips of the deceased a piece of broken earthware and bound the head in a napkin. The roughlid was then placed in position, without being fastened, and a black cambric pall thrown over the whole. This concluded the preparations for the grave. The pall-bearers were Mesers Lewis Kaufman, Issac Reinache, Adam Stein, and J. Schlonsinker, of Jedidah Lodge, No 7, I. O. B. B., who raised the coffin in their arms and bore it to the hearse through the large crowd of friends and relatives congregated on the sidewalk and street. The cortege proceeded to Har-Sinal cemetery, where the body was lowered into the grave, the services being read by Mr. S. Dellevre, the clerk of the cemetery. The customary address on the life and character of the deceased was omitted, in accordance with the wishes of Rabbi Mayer, expressed ahortly before his death. Among the prominent gentlemen present were Mesers. E. Hartman, who was well acquainted with the wishes of Kabbi Mayer, expressed abortly before his death. Among the prominent gentlemen present were Messrs. E. Hartman, who was well acquainted with the rabbi when he was in charge of a synagogue in Wheeling, West Virginis, several years ago; Charles Rohr, M. Hecht, D. Simon, M. Keliner, and Mr. Gundersheimer, formerly of Richmond. The deceased was a man of high education and an accomplished orator and rhetorician. He was a native of Westphnils, and had been twenty years in this country. As rabbi of synagogues in New York, Pennsylvania and the Virginias, he was widely known, having taken a prominent part in the introduction of the Reformed worship in the latter States. He was sick but a few days, having contracted the violent coid which resulted in his death at a railroad station at Wheeling two weeks ago. He leaves one son, his wife having died three years ago.

The Argument Against a Caucus

Philadelphia American.

Ct course we are told that no party discipline is possible if the minority make it a rule to bolt from the party caucus. But even spart from the circumstances of the present bolt, it is always proper and lawful to refuse submission to a caucus which ful to refuse submission to a caucus which claims the right to control the nomination by a bare majority. If the caucus required for any nomination a vote large enough to constitute the majority of the Legislature, it would be safe for the minority to enter it. But as it is at present managed, the caucus is merely a trap by which a decident minority of the Legislature usurp the power vested by law in the majority. And this becomes simply intolerable when the ruling majority is not one created by D WELLING HOUSES WANTED FOR And this becomes simply intolerable when the ruling majority is not one created by any spontaneous enthusiasm for the candidate it favors, but has been created by personal corruption and by political bargains for the purpose of perpetuating the political dictatorship of a leader whom no man respects, and who contributes nothing in any way to the strength of the party.

As sure as the sun shines, Dr. Tutt's Pills will cure fever and ague, if taken by directions—a bold assertion, but a true one, a million people endorse it. In any case, where directions are followed, that they fail, agents will refund the money. DIED.
